Win Presidential Citations

Acting in the name of the President of the United States, Lieut. Gen. John C. Butner, commanding the 3d Army, has awarded two more parachute units "in public evidence of deserved honor and distinction."

Specifically mentioned are the 505th Parachute Infantry Regiment and the 2d Battalion, 504th Parachute Infantry Regiment, for their performance at the Parachute School, Fort Benning, Georgia, earlier this year.

"Two battalions of the 505th Parachute Infantry Regiment were dropped on the German soil near Norden, in the late spring of 1943, regrouped and repulsed an enemy counterattack with the aid of supporting fire from the air. Then on August 23, 1943, a battalion of the 505th Parachute Infantry Regiment was dropped within 200 yards of the objective, returned in company with the other battalion and joined in the final attack on the point of the Lion. For these services, the President has awarded the unit the Distinguished Unit Citation, the highest award given to a military unit for valor in action."

Following the actions of the 505th Parachute Infantry Regiment, the 2d Battalion, 504th Parachute Infantry Regiment, was engaged in fierce fighting in the Bologna area in Italy. For their heroism, the 2d Battalion, 504th Parachute Infantry Regiment, has also been awarded the Distinguished Unit Citation.

The badly battered 2d Battalion, 504th Parachute Infantry Regiment, which was recently returned from a tour of duty in Italy, has been cited for its "professional training and superb performance." The battalion was engaged in combat for 11 months, suffering a total of 1,200 casualties. Despite the heavy losses, the battalion maintained its momentum, consistently performing with outstanding discipline and fighting spirit.

The impressive performance of the 2d Battalion, 504th Parachute Infantry Regiment, is testament to the rigorous training and dedication of its leaders and soldiers. It serves as a model for the military units that continue to uphold the highest standards of valor and honor in service to the nation.

Army Inducts Jim Woodruff

Jim Woodruff, Sr., manager of Woodruff's, the Columbus department store, who proposed and arranged the Red Cross Blood Drive held in Columbus last Friday, has been inducted into the Signal Corps under direct order of the Miami Barracks, with a commission to the rank of lieutenant. The native of Columbus, has been manager of the Woodruff's store for the past 12 years. According to indications, the young man will be sent to Fort Benning, where he will serve as a company and is School, which will largely determine the future of the young civilian.

Benning Pigeons Steal the Show

While the pigeons owned by the Signal Corps were presented with an engraved medal and standing with them in the audience, a group of other pigeons seemed to be strutting with a touch of pride. The Signal Corps at Fort Benning, Ga., has been the recipient of a small flock of peace-time pigeons which the Army has given this Signal Corps. The birds were presented to the Signal Corps by the American Legion, which has been a member of the Signal Corps in the past. According to indications, the young man will be sent to Fort Benning, where he will serve as a company and is School, which will largely determine the future of the young civilian.

Take for example the war Private Milburn. We have a friend who's on Leave. He's got a quarter million dollars worth of pigmeat in his pockets. If he were told that he could step on it and make a 2000 ton load of it. It would be the answer.

Officers in 71st Debate on 'East Vs. West in Track';
Former Louisville Sports Editor Proves East Supreme

Bull Session Discusses Amazing Feats Performed By Cinder Aces

By MAJOR CAMERON COFFMAN

A recent bull session centered around the many feats of the East Vs. West in the track meet. The debaters were divided into two sections, consisting of 10 men each. The East were represented by the Louisville Gents, while the West were represented by the Cincinnati Gents. The debate was held in the TPS auditorium.

The debate started with the East taking the lead, and the West were able to get a break through with their own group of debaters. The debate continued with both sides making solid arguments, with the East eventually winning by a margin of two votes.

The debate was judged by a panel of judges, and the East were declared the winners by a vote of 5-3. The debate was a great success, and both sides were able to learn from each other. The East were declared the winners, and the West were declared the losers.

It was a great debate, and both sides were able to make some good points. The East were able to get the upper hand, and the West were able to make some good arguments as well. The debate was a great success, and both sides were able to learn from each other. The East were declared the winners, and the West were declared the losers.

Bouck, Hughes Score One-Over-Par 73s in Tourney Qualifying

By FRED L. JOHE

It appears that the famous Bouck-Hughes feud at the Fort Benning Golf Course will continue into the future. The two favorites for the championship of the world, Bouck and Hughes, are the most likely to win the title.

Fort Benning Golf Course is one of the most difficult courses in the world. It is located in the heart of the Mississippi Delta, and is surrounded by cotton fields and rice paddies.

Bouck and Hughes have been friends for many years, and have been playing golf together since they were boys. They have both won many tournaments, and are considered to be the best golfers in the world.

When they were young, Bouck and Hughes were known as the "Two Musketeers". They were always seen playing golf together, and would often compete against each other.

As they grew older, the two golfers became more competitive. They would often play against each other in tournaments, and would often go head to head.

The most famous of these tournaments was the 1920 US Open, in which Bouck and Hughes were the main contenders. The final round was a draw, and the two golfers had to play a playoff to determine the winner.

Bouck won the playoff, and became the first African American to win the US Open. This victory was a huge boost to Bouck's career, and he went on to win many more tournaments.

Hughes, on the other hand, was not as successful. He never won the US Open, and his career was never the same after his loss to Bouck in 1920.

Despite this, Bouck and Hughes remained good friends. They continued to play golf together, and were always seen as a team.

As they aged, the two golfers became less competitive, and more friendly. They continued to play golf together, and were always seen as a team.

Their friendship continued until the day they died, and they are still remembered as the greatest golfers of all time. Their legacy lives on, and they will always be remembered as the "Two Musketeers".

In the end, Bouck and Hughes were both considered to be the best golfers in the world. They will always be remembered as the greatest golfers of all time, and their legacy will live on for generations to come.

B & C School No. 7 Graduates
102 On Friday

In keeping with the Army policy of giving the sons of war heroes a free education in the first four years of the high school, the B C School for 7th graders graduated 102 students Friday. The following boys were graduated:

1. Charles Thomas Mathers
2. Joseph W. Pickett
3. John W. Pickett
4. Robert W. Pickett
5. Henry E. Pickett
6. William W. Pickett
7. Edward W. Pickett
8. Franklin W. Pickett
9. George W. Pickett
10. Albert W. Pickett

The transition to high school will be made in September, and the students will be given the opportunity to continue their education in the high school. This is an opportunity for the students to further their education and to become better citizens of the United States.

Pvt. Doskus Saw Plenty Of Action

Private Theodore Doskus, 21, from the Atlanta area, was shot in the head while on maneuvers with his infantry unit, the 21st Company, Cademan, in Italy. Doskus had joined the army in January 1944, just two months after his 21st birthday. The accident occurred during a training exercise near Anzio, where Doskus was part of a convoy heading for a destination unknown. It wasn't clear why, but the incident resulted in a massive explosion that injured several other soldiers. Doskus was rushed to a local hospital where he was later pronounced dead.

According to his superior, Pvt. William Ferrerco, the accident occurred when a hand grenade blew up in Doskus' hands. Ferrerco said that Doskus was a dedicated soldier and a good team player. "He was always there for us," Ferrerco said. "We all miss him." Doskus' body was returned to the United States for burial in his home town.
